

Solstice

Felicia Sanzari Chernesky

Published online: 4 May 2014
© Springer Science+Business Media New York 2014

Solstice

This is Ceres's season.
Grain grows from fingertips
and light is good and warm.
Night becomes the place
to contemplate long days of sowing. What was taught?
What was learned?
Spring was fraught with sacrifice
and summer wants my sweat to bear out the birth of furrowed seed. I need to know what knowing's for.
Wheat? Diverting chaff?

Felicia Sanzari Chernesky is managing and poetry editor of Academic Questions, 8 West 38th Street, Suite 503, New York, NY 10018-6229; chernesky@nas.org. She is the author of a series of rhyming picture books published by Albert Whitman & Company and illustrated by Susan Swan.